Dear Board of Port Commissioners:

Sandy Naranjo and I have two beautiful kids together. Although we were married for several years, she and I are now divorced.

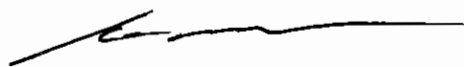

Sandy has not asked me to write this letter. I heard about the proposed censure against her through the press. When I read the accusations, I realized that I had information that you and the public should know. Because I cannot attend the meeting to share what I know myself, I have authorized Sandy's lawyer to read this letter.

Sandy and I were still married during her first year on the Port Board. One of the first things she began to suspect was that the Port's top attorney, Tom Russell, was acting unethically and possibly illegally. Sandy was therefore asking a lot of questions about the quality and trustworthiness of his work.

Mr. Russell's assistant, Rebecca Harrington, is a good friend of my brother, and I have met her on only two occasions. The first time was in 2022, shortly after Sandy and I had split up. After learning this, Ms. Harrington approached me to tell me how much she hates Sandy and how terrible she thought Sandy was. On the second occasion, just last August at my brother's vacation house in Grass Valley, Ms. Harrington and I were talking. She again told me that she hates Sandy and that the Port Commissioners all hate Sandy and that "Sandy is going down."

I just wanted you to know that for quite some time Mr. Russell's assistant has been making it clear that this day was coming, which makes it sound like this is more of a political take-down than a legitimate concern about Sandy.

Sincerely,

Andrew McKercher
